Evenlite Luminescence A Light Like No Other

You have an innovative choice for exit signage: self-luminescent signs, brought to you by Evenlite, a company that has pioneered the field.

These signs are the most energy efficient emergency egress signs currently on the market. They require no additional light source to charge them, no electrical current, and no battery. Versatile, rugged, and durable, these signs will change the way you think about self-luminescence.

It's Easy Being "Green"

Evenlite's self-luminescent line of products is powered by a Tritium light source that remains continuously illuminated. Evenlite takes the waste product from the production of electricity used in homes and communities and turns it into an important life safety device. Maintenance-free and 100% self-sufficient, this line contains products with a useful lifespan of up to 20 years. At the end of its life, the materials contained within these products can be recycled again.

Evenlite self-luminescent products meet all applicable fire and building codes, and are available in a variety of finishes that complement any location. Ideally suited for applications where a reliable emergency exit sign is required, the durable construction of Evenlite's self-luminescent products ensures you constant, dependable operation for years to come.

Self-Luminescent Options

Evenlite has a full line of self-luminescent products designed to accommodate any emergency egress sign or path marking need you may have. Options include:

Markerlite
